Recount of Chapter Birthday Boy

Willie woke up and flung out of bed. Today was exciting. "Happy Birthday William!" cried Tom. Willie couldn't help but smile. Back in London it would be the same thing. Get whacked on the back. Anyway, Willie was excited. Before he went to school he practised his writing saying 'I am William Beech' over and over. Tom persuaded him to get some fresh air with Sammy and take him out for a run. Meanwhile, the postman came. "Ows the ~~birthday~~ birthday boy?" asked the postman.

"Oh ex sine," replied Tom. There were lots of parcels in the postman's hands. Tom quickly took them.

"Thank you," he shouted. Willie came back looking tired and breathless. Tom took him inside and showed him the presents. "Are those for me?" asked William.

"Yeh, you can open them if ^{you} want," answered Tom.

Willie looked at it. "Is this it? A box?" questioned Willie.

"No! No. You have to open it. It's a birthday present," replied Tom. Willie opened it and it was an outfit. Tom suggested to try it on so he did. "Y'all grows out of it," said Tom.

The next present was some under clothes by May Thorne, whom he has not met. Emilia gave him a coloured issue of The Wind in the Willows. "It's mine!" cried Willie, with tears rolling down his cheek. Tom added. Willie jumped with joy. Vicar gave him a game of Snap. Walter Bird gave him a comic. The Lickers gave him pictures and games. Connie gave him a white china egg-cup with a gold rim. Tom had to tell Willie what they were. "Come William, one yer birthday breakfast," suggested Tom. After having his breakfast Willie ~~was~~ was chomping on a copy board. "Open it. There's a surprise," he whispered Tom. In the it was a sketch pad, paint brushes, colouring pens and paint. Willie almost gainted. He hurried off to school.

Tom watched Zach and Willie walk off to school. "Here boy!" yelled Tom to Sammy. Sammy leaped on to his master and was given a treat. "That present reminds me of me wige," exclaimed Tom with a tear down his chin. Sammy licked him to make him feel better. "I've made a boy so happy, Sam," said Tom. Sammy barked at him and Tom couldn't help but smile.

In the afternoon, Willie had no lessons with Mrs Black so he went into town and thanked everyone. Tom gave him bag and Sammy leapt on to him as he said sat down. "Do yous wanna draw something?" asked Tom.

"Yeh Mister Tom" replied Willie. Willie wanted to draw something simple like a tree. They walked out but it started to rain. "Aww!" cried Willie.

"Maybe yous could church," draw Church," added Tom. Willie drew the church. Meanwhile, Zach popped in. "Oh, ey Will," pondered Zach. Zach had a look at the drawing. "Wow! That's amazing," shouted Zach. Willie blushed. "Come on. There's a surprise," said Zach. Willie followed him. "That be Mister Tom's house," exclaimed Willie. Zach opened the door and lots of people in Little Weirworld were there. "Surprise!" shouted everyone.
